Problems of Fast Fashion

★Environmental Problems

1. The issue of garbage resulting from the mass disposal of clothing.

 - pollute water quality as they flow into the sea.
 - harm the ecosystem.

★Labor Problems

Many workers face harsh working conditions.

Sustainability vs Regeneration

Sustainability involves maintaining what we have without causing further damage. Some examples of sustainability include reducing waste, using renewable energy sources, and finding ways to conserve natural resources.

Regeneration goes a step further by actively improving systems, including the environment, communities, and resources. It's about making things better and stronger.

Regenerative T-shirt Project

1. Vegetable-dyed T-shirts using discarded vegetables
ex) onions, eggplants, carrots, tomatoes, etc.

2. Fairtrade T-shirts from Sisum Kobo
→Customers can support producers in developing countries.

★We used the school's garment printer to print our original logo on both T-shirts.

Social Contributions by the Project

- 1) We used 100% organic cotton T-shirts.

→ Learned about environmental protection and the importance of ecosystems.

- 2) Fostered connections among people.

- 3) Supported fair trade through donations.

- Donating a portion of the proceeds was donated to Fairtrade Japan
→ Contributing to the improvement of working conditions and lifestyles in developing countries.
